II Assignment Procedures

- A. When the initial paper is presented and given the proper number, the clerk will select the menu option to randomly assign a district judge from the appropriate district judge card deck and a magistrate judge shall be assigned from the appropriate magistrate judge card deck. The clerk will stamp the initial paper with the district judge section. All subsequent papers filed in the action will bear the case number assigned and the section assigned.
- B. The Automated Case Assignment System will automatically regenerate the appropriate number of cards when the deck is depleted.

- C. Credit shall be given to the judge to whom a case is assigned outside of these procedures.
- D. When a judge of the court is recused in a pending case, the clerk will select the reassignment option. The system will automatically replace the card of the REASSIGNED FROM judge.
- E. When a judge of the court is automatically recused in a case at the time it is filed, a random assignment will nevertheless be made for that case. In the event the random drawing assigns the case to the judge who is recused, the clerk shall use the system reassignment option.
- F. Except for the authority of the chief judge, cases may be transferred from one section to another only upon the concurrence of the transferor and the transferee judges.
- G. In the interest of justice and judicial economy, the Court may by en banc order change percentages of cases assigned to each section, reallocate pending cases and/or designate a case or cases to be handled by a particular section.

All Orders or General Orders to the contrary are hereby vacated and set aside.

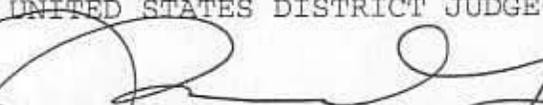

SO ORDERED.
